In protecting his sister from what he thought to be an attack, Edward B. Fisher of No. 2008 South Jefferson avenue shot and probably fatally wounded his brother-inaw, John Childs Williams, of No. 2102 Clifton street, at 6 o'clock last night on the stairway leading to the second floor of the Fisher home. Williams received two bullet wounds, one in the region of the heart and the other in the left arm near the shoulder. He was taken to the City Hospital, where, upon examination of his wounds, the physicians pronounced them dangerous. Fisher was arrested and locked up at the Second District Police Station. He declares he shot Williams in defense of his sister.

Williams, who was separated from his wife six months ago, called last night at the home of her brother, where she is stopping, and tried to gain admittance to the toose. He encountered his brother-in-law, Fisher, on the stairway and the latter shot him. Mrs. Williams corroborated that part of Mrs. Williams corroborated that part of her brother's story regarding the alleged brutal treatment by her husband. She claims she did not see the shooting and that she was ignorant of her husband's presence until she heard the shots.

"I was married to Williams four years ago." said she. "At that time he was a conductor on the Grand avenue line. We have two children, both of whom live with me."

The old sensational issue, with its financial scandul, growing out of the Government allowance for the use of the publishing-house property during the war between the States, seems destined to be an intensely perious question again.

RODENBERG CAPTURES | F. BRET HARTE IS THE NOMINATION.

District Select Him for Congress.

An enthusiastic convention, yesterday offernoon, nominated William A. Rodenberg of East St. Louis as candidate for Congress on the Republican ticket, for the Twenty-second District of Illinois.

This makes the third time that Mr. Rodenberg has been nominated for Congress. The first time he was elected and the Second time he was defeated by Fred J. Kern of Belleville, the present Congressman from of Believille, the present Congression from this district, which, however, has been changed by the last gerrymander, into what the Republicans claim will be the strongest Republican district in the State. The Demo-crats, however, assert, in strong terms, that not only will the district so Democratic, but so will every county in the district. The new district is comprised of St.

Clair, Madison, Bend, Monroe and Washington counties, and was formerly a Democratic stronghold.

The convention was held in the auditorium of the East St. Louis City Hall, and was called to order by J. A. Willoughby, chairman of the Congressional Committee. W.
E. Hadley of Madison County was temporary chairman and H. H. Hosmer of Washington County was temporary secretary. Later. Mr. Hadley gave up to Lieutenant Governor Northcott of Greenville, who was permanent chairman. Committees on Credentials, Resolutions, Permanent Organization and Congressional Affairs were named, and the convention adjourned until after dinner.

The resolutions indorsed the conduct of public affairs, both national and State.
Dan McGlynn of East St. Louis nominated
William A. Rodenberg for member of Congress, and A. C. Williams of Madison County seconded the nomination, which was made by acclamation. Lieutenant Governor Northcott appointed a committee to escort Mr. Rodenberg to the platform. He was given an ovation as he entered the hall. He made a typical Republican speech, in which he ascribed the present agitation against the trusts to the Republican, and not the Democratic party.
He promised, if elected, to vote in favor of an amendment to the Constitution, if necessary, in order to bring the trusts under control.

Speeches were made by Messrs, Northcott, Cicero J. Lindley and State Representatives W. E. Trautman and John Chamberlain. The latter generously threw bouquets at themselves for their part in the State gerrymander, by which the new East St. Louis district was believed to have been changed from a Democratic to a Republican district.

The new Congressional Committee will be composed of fifteen. Ten were selected vesterday, two from each county. Con-publican district.

DEAD IN LONDON.

Republicans of New East St. Louis He Idealized the Wild West in His Characteristic Poems and Stories.

> SPECIAL BY CABLE TO THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC. London, May 6 .- (Copyright, 1902.)-Francls Bret Harte, whose vivid stories of an identized Wild West have made his name known wherever the English language is spoken, died here at midnight last night. The death of the distinguished American author came as a shock and surprise. Messuges have been received from all parts of the world expressing sorrow at the event. The London newspapers speak in kindest terms of the deceased and his work. Mr. Harte had been suffering from swelled tonsils since last December, but he did not consider the attack to be serious. A week ago he went to visit friends at Camberley, and was present at lunch, as usual, yesterday. He suddenly became ill in the afternoon, went to bed and dled in a few hours. His end was peaceful.

FRANCIS BRET HARTE, Distinguished American author, who died vesterday in London. His tales and verses about California life have been read in every English-speaking community.

Mr. Harte had been living quietly in England for years. Most of his time was spent in the country, and when in London he was almost secluded, having few visitors to his soms at Lancaster Gate, and only going to the houses of a limited number of very timate friends. Several months ago. when a false report of his death was circulated in America, a representative of the Associated Press called at his rooms. Mr. Harte then appeared to be perfectly well. He laughed heartly and quoted Mark Twain's old saying about the report being greatly exaggerated

"Except for a little cold," said Mr. Harte, "I have no allments or complaints. While I am getting to be a pretty old man"pointing to his snow white hair-"there is life in the old dog yet," and thereon he lit a cigar so large that it would have done credit to any of his Poker Fiat friends. He was hoping, he also said, to do more work, but he confessed he was growing lazy. Emigrated to California.

Francis Bret Harte was born in Albany, N. Y., in 1839. In his veins was a mixture of English, German and Hebrew blood. His father, a man of considerable cultivation and much natural ability, was a professor in the Albany Female Academy, and after his early death the family migrated, in 1854,

There the future author had the usual varied life of a youthful ploneer, teaching school, digging gold and setting type by turns, and incidentally collecting a large amount of valuable experience in the ways of frontler society. From 1864 to 1870 he was secretary of the United States branch mint at San Francisco.

When a newspaper compositor in Eureka he first tried his hand at literary composition, setting up his stories in type, instead of writing them, and the ability displayed in them led to his appointment as an assistant editor.

But in this capacity he proved more energetic than discreet. His indignant de-nunciation of the annihilation of a band of Indians by some of his fellow-citizens al-most caused the destruction of the newspaper office, and he had to seek other em-ployment. He then started the Californian on his own account, but this experiment, although his own contributions, which included some of his earlier tales, were widely read, proved a failure commercially, but not before its editor had attracted general atention by his clever "condensed novels," skits upon the popular fiction of the period, which were compared with some of the same kind of work done by Thackeray Originality Brings Author Fame. His full opportunity, however, came with the establishment of the Overland Monthly 1868, and his appointment as editor. From the first number he was a liberal contribufor of poems, sketches and stories, whose freshness, interest, variety and originality at once created a great demand for the new magazine. In it first appeared those famous stories. "The Luck of Roaring Camp" and "The Outcasts of Poker Flat." which were followed in 1870 by "The Heathen Chinee," one of the most successful bits of humorous verse on record, which was quoted all over the country and was soon almost as well known in Europe as in American.

TOOK FATAL DOSE OF ACID. P. J. Sandidy Drank Deadly Dose in Coroner's Office.

A witness coming out of the Coroner's office about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon stumbled over the body of a middle-aged man, against whose lips a bottle labeled "carbolic acid" was tightly pressed. He was unconscious and seemed to be scarcely breathing. He was identified as P. J. Sandidy of No. 830 North Sixteenth street. John Manton, a stenographer in the Coroner's office, summoned an ambulance, Sandidy died before arriving at the hospisaining dea before arriving at the hospi-tal, where he was later identified by his son. According to the police, Sandidy had been out of employment for some time, was despondent and inclined to cure his anxiety with drink. His family watched him close-ity to prevent an attempt at suicide, as they believed was his intention.

ly to prevent an attempt at suicide, as they believed was his intention.

Late Monday night Mrs. Sandidy states that her husband produced a vial of carbolic acid and tried to swallow the drug. She interfered, but found it necessary to call for help to restrain her husband.

He was taken to the Fourth District Police Station, where he spent the night. He was released yesterday morning, but did not go home, and the family became worried about him. A son volunteered to hunt for his father.

At the City Dispensary he learned that a man about 45 years old, answering the description of his father, had committed suicide near the Coroner's office. He was immediately convinced that their fears had been realized, and went to the City Hospital to satisfy himself. After the inquest, which will probably be held this morning, the family of the dead man will take charge of the body, which is still at the hospital.
